Nov 5, 17

Actions to Stop Doing
- The team should stop creating user stories that rely too much on each other
- The team should stop assigning a whole user story to 1 person

Actions to Start Doing
- The team should begin to anticipate which tasks will potentially block others from being completed and complete these early on in the sprint.
- The team should begin to hold regular non-scrum meetings/group work sessions in order to prevent certain tasks or user stories from falling behind.
- The team should start communicating more when blockers arise.
- The team should start dividing user stories into smaller tasks with more than 1 person assigned to them.

Actions to Keep Doing
- The team should continue to hold regular scrum meetings.
- The team should continue to find time to work together.
